

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The second edition of this book is entirely due to the efforts of Dr. K.N. Chandrasekaran Pillai, Director of the Indian Law Institute whose persuasive skills lulled me into believing that I was the right man to undertake the task of revising the work of my worthy predecessor Shri G.Rajagopaul. Initially I was reluctant to undertake this task for two reasons namely constraints of time due to my preoccupation with official duties and secondly I had left legal academics nearly two decades ago .However due to my friendship with Dr.Chandrasekharan Pillai which is nearly three decades old, I could not refuse his offer.

The revision of this book is also due to the inspiration given by Justice Jagannadha Rao, Former Judge of the Supreme Court of India and who was also the Chairman of the Law Commission of India under whom I had the privilege of working as the Member Secretary . He always reposed great faith in my drafting skills and persuaded me to accept this assignment.

I am grateful to Mr. Lionel Levert, President of Commonwealth Association of Legislative Counsel (CALC) with whom I developed a instantaneous liking, admiration and affinity when I met him in Dhaka in 2002 and who readily agreed to write the foreword to the Second edition.

I also acknowledge those drafters of the Commonwealth who were assembled at the CALC Conference in London September 2005 who gave me a sense of identity and belonging to the drafting fraternity which inspired me to pursue this book with zeal and enthusiasm .

I also graciously acknowledge the debt I owe to my predecessor, late Shri.G.Rajagopaul who faced many challenges in building Legislative Department after independence and also the successive Secretaries who has strived hard to uphold highest standards in Legislative Drafting.

I also graciously acknowledge the debt I owe to the Dr.H.R Bhardwaj, Minister for Law & Justice who encouraged me to undertake this work and also impressed upon me the need to strengthen the capacity building programmes in Legislative Drafting . It is his ardent desire and dream that Law Ministry should establish a world class institution which can train drafters who can measure up to Global standards. He and his predecessors Shri Arun Jaitley and Shri Ram Jethmalani understood the intricacies and difficulties involved in drafting of legislation and gave wholehearted support to the Legislative Department. I acknowledge their gesture .

I also acknowledge the invaluable assistance rendered by Dr S.S. Jaswal Assistant Research Professor Indian Law Institute in shaping this book and for putting up with my impossible demands. He had been meticulous in going through the manuscript and has been a source of strength through out this undertaking.

I also acknowledge the patience of my wife Sudha, for sparing the scarce matrimonial time which facilitated me to complete the book and also for enduring the hardships which are inflicted upon a draftsman's wife.

Last but not the least, the book like the Bills I have drafted, may contain errors which are entirely mine. May be like an Amendment Act brought for rectifying the drafting difficulties in the principal Act, the third edition of the book undertaken by some younger drafter in the near future will address these concerns. After all, life is drama where we announce the prologue and retire . After us better players will come.

20th August 2007
New Delhi

T.K. Viswanathan