The problems concerning energy conservation and general ideas about the law for this purpose was discussed by Prof. Alice Jacob and Prof. Chhatrapati Singh of the Indian Law Institute with the members of the Advisory Board on Energy, in December, 1986. Following this discussion, the task of studying the existing legislations and devising a new Bill, if necessary, was assigned to Prof. Chhatrapati Singh in January, 1987. The work was financially supported by the Advisory Board on Energy, Government of India. It would not have been possible to carry it through without the patient and efficient support of Mr. Prabir Sengupta, Joint Secretary at the Board.

The work agenda, scope and nature of work, research methodology and logistics of its execution was decided by Prof. Chhatrapati Singh. However, the work would have been impossible without the extended research done by Mr. Pradip K. Chaudhary and Ms. Rema Devi P. of the Indian Law Institute.

Valuable suggestions for the improvement of the Bill were received from Prof. Upendra Baxi, Prof. J.K. Mittal, Prof. Alice Jacob and members present at the workshop. Their co-operation is gratefully acknowledged.

Our thanks are due to Mr. S.S. Narula whose concentrated efforts in editing and reading proofs have made the work presentable.

Lastly, typing out all these ideas in black and white would be inconceivable without Ms. Molly Joseph. Our sincere thanks to her.
