

TABLE OF CONTENTS

		PAGE NO.
PART I
CHAPTER I	INTRODUCTORY
	The terms of reference and the scope of the enquiry	1
	Method of enquiry	2
	Plan of the report	4
CHAPTER II	JUTE—A HISTORICAL RETROSPECT
	Main effects of partition on the jute economy	5
	The growth of jute acreage and the development of the industry	7
	Trends in the Inter War period—1919-1949	8
	Finlow Committee and Fawcus Committee's recommendations hold good in today's conditions	8
CHAPTER III	SUPPLY OF RAW JUTE—AREA AND PRODUCTION
	Cultivation of jute—Changes during the war period and after Partition	11
	Acreage by regions	14
	'Grow more jute'—an assessment	14
	Price factor limits diversion of cultivation and extension to marginal lands	15
	Self-sufficiency as a goal	16
	Need for continued importation of quality jute from Pakistan	18
	Effect of prices on area sown	18
	Effect of recent fall in jute prices	19
	Mesta	20
	Committee on quality jute	21
	Their recommendations on growing of jute, retting and stripping	21
	Use of better seeds	22
	Rational restriction of area	22
CHAPTER IV	CULTIVATOR'S COSTS
	Costs of cultivation of jute	24
	Data still unsuitable for price fixation	26
	Comparative costs of alternative crops	27
	Jute price not determinable on budget of agriculturist	28

CHAPTER	MARKETING OF JUTE—GENERAL	PAGE No.
	General pattern—No change	31
	Primary markets	31
	Local variations	33
	Mill purchases and stocks	34
	Decline of intermediaries	36
	Basis of prices in primary markets	36
	Quality and grading	37
	Market charges and deductions	37
	Non-standard weights	37
CHAPTER VI	MARKETING OF JUTE—TRANSPORT
	Transport difficulties in villages	38
	For movement to Calcutta	38
	Improvements suggested	41
	High freight rates	41
	Burden of incidence	43
	Shortage of railway wagons	44
	Effect of high freight to Calcutta—how far remove- able	45
	Other difficulties	46
CHAPTER VII	MARKETING OF JUTE—INDEBTEDNESS— OTHER HANDICAPS
	Effect of Indebtedness	47
	'Dadan' system	48
	Present role of co-operatives	49
	Cultivator's holding power	49
	Accumulation with dealers	49
	Market deductions and irregularities	50
	Market information	51 ²
CHAPTER VIII	MARKETING OF JUTE—CLASSIFICATION AND GRADING
	Value of proper grading	52
	Changes in basis of grading	52
	Suggestions of I.C.J.C. Committee—1947	53
	Grading for export unnecessary	54
	Classification and quality differential	54
	Storage	55

CHAPTER IX	MARKETING OF JUTE—REGULATED MARKETS CO-OPERATIVES
	Regulated Markets	56
	The case for co-operatives	57
	Alternatives considered by Focus Committee	57
	Co-operative warehouses	57
	Setting up of multi-purpose co-operatives for jute	59
	Sales-tax burden to be avoided	60
CHAPTER X	RAW JUTE—ANCILLARY RECOMMENDATIONS
	Research station	62
	Manure	62
	Increased yield	63
	Use of improved seed	63
	New strains	64
	Better implements and methods of cultivation	65
	Plant protection	65
	Retting-water facilities	65
	Price spread of jute from cultivator to the mills	66
	Export of jute	66
	Mills ready-purchase to be increased	67
	Subsidy to seller	68
	Zonal distribution	68
CHAPTER XI	THE PROBLEM OF PRICES
	The general case for price control stated—Krishnamachari Committee 1947	69
	Its application to the case of jute	70
	Demand for minimum prices	71
	Grounds of opposition to it	72
	Not beneficial in the long run to grower or Industry	74
	Basis of our recommendation	74
	Statutory controls not advised	74
	Voluntary regulations preferred	75
	Establishment of a Jute Board	75
	Adoption of "fair prices" on voluntary basis	76

	PAGE No.
CHAPTER XII	ORGANIZATION AND GROWTH OF THE INDUSTRY
	Growth of mill industry 79
	Its importance to India 79
	I. J. M. A.'s place in the organized industry 80
	System of management 80
	Organisation of a typical mill 81
	Typical mill products 81
	Functionaries in the gunny trade 82
	Increased participation of mills 82
	Role of the 'Bazar' 83
CHAPTER XIII	JUTE BALING INDUSTRY
	Development of exports 84
	Grading for export 85
	Marketing charges 85
	Changes since the War in export trade 85
	Pattern of raw jute purchases 85
CHAPTER XIV	MILL PURCHASES
	Procedure of mills 87
	Use of bimli and mesta 88
	Forward purchases of jute 88
	Basis of forward purchase 89
	Simultaneous business explained 89
	Hedging 91
	Forward delivery period 91
	Changes in mill demand for raw jute—a resume. 91
CHAPTER XV	MILL PRODUCTION AND FACTORS INFLUENCING IT
	Trends since decontrol in March 1951 93
	Government measures to stop the slump 94
	Can present level of prices be maintained? 97
	Readjustment in production 98
CHAPTER XVI	THE EXPORT MARKETS
	United States of America 101
	Argentina 101
	United Kingdom 102
	Australia and other countries 102
	Seasonal Demand 102
	Mills' role in export trade 103
	Need for proper standardisation 104
	Need for market research and diversified production 106

CHAPTER XXII .	JUTE STATISTICS
	Initial compilation	140
	Forecasts and market reports	140
	Criticism of Government statistics	141
CHAPTER XXIII .	SPECULATION IN JUTE MARKETS
	Method of enquiry	143
	Views of trade Associations	143
	Nature and market effects of the corner in hessian 10 oz.	144
	Evidence of Shri H. P. Bagaria	146
	Evidence of some parties connected with market operations.	148
	Our conclusions	152
CHAPTER XXIV .	FUTURES MARKETS
	History of Futures markets in jute	153
	Katni Market	155
	Report of Mr. J. A. Todd	156
CHAPTER XXV .	THE NEED FOR A FUTURES MARKET
	Theoretical basis for forward markets	160
	Opinion of Chairman, Calcutta Stock Exchange	162
	Assessment of opinion for and against it	164
	Recommendations	165
	No better alternative to check speculation	168
CHAPTER XXVI .	FUTURE OF JUTE INDUSTRY
	Diminishing market advantages	170
	Requisites for stabilisation of market	171
	Reduction of costs	171
	Rationalisation of Industry	171
	Modernisation and rehabilitation	172
CHAPTER XXVII .	SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS AND RE- COMMENDATIONS	175—183